Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the Applicant is claiming a machine-readable storage medium, which makes claim 19 non-statutory since the claim is directed to a function descriptive material not stored on a computer readable medium and not computer executed, wherein the executable instruction's/program's functionality is not realized as it is not stored on a computer readable medium, whereas, a computer-readable medium including a computer program defines structural and functional interrelationships between the computer program and the rest of the computer, which allows the computer program's functionality to be realized.

Reason for Allowance

1. Claims 1-18 and 20 are allowed over prior art.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: As indicated in the previous office action claim 6, 7 and 15 contain allowable subject matter. Applicant has amended claim 1, 18 and 19 to include previously indicated allowable subject matter, and Applicant has amended claim 6 to read as an independent claim.

Although the prior art discloses utilizing scheduling in a communication system, wherein time slots are managed by a time slot table, they fail to teach or suggest with respect to claims 1, 6 and 18 priority element determines an initial transmission priority for transmission elements of the group by designating a given transmission element as a current high priority transmission element, with the other transmission elements in the group being arranged in a linear order of decreasing priority relative to the current high priority transmission element.
